What’s new in 1.2

This issue brings the guide up to date with the site as of November 2026. The main changes since Version 1.1 are:

- A large gold User’s Guide: How to use WyoVote → button now sits under the Home page title. The smaller User’s Guide link in the footer stays as it was.
- Below the News box, Home shows at most four articles, and none older than 15 days. Older articles are in the Archive. A More articles in the Archive → link appears under the list. When only the News box is on the page, a larger Archive button takes its place.
- The top menu now includes a Name Index tab, to search names or download name lists by year, county, or committee.
- Deeper dive is now called Profile. Each legislator from 2008 through 2026 has a Profile, with a rank chart, band history, issue areas, missed votes, and committee service. Statewide Profiles, linked under State on Officials, cover the five statewide offices.
- Home and Archive report tiles are now labeled Rank and Alpha. They open two-page sheets (Letter paper) for 2019 through 2026. Full reports remain in the Archive for 2021 through 2026.
- The 2015 ranks shown on Profiles were corrected.

1. Welcome

The top of WyoVote.com: the name, the tabs, including Name Index, and the large gold User's Guide button under the Home page title.

WyoVote is a free website about Wyoming elections and the Wyoming Legislature. It is for ordinary voters, and also for journalists and researchers.

WyoVote is independent. It is not a government site. It is not tied to any political party, candidate, or political action committee. It carries no ads, and it does not endorse candidates.

The site publishes ratings of state legislators based on their recorded votes. Those ratings appear as ranks and color labels: Conservative, Moderate, or Liberal. Ranked lists are Sorted from MOST Conservative to Most Liberal — rank 1 is the MOST Conservative in that session, and the last rank is the Most Liberal. The legend on ranks is: Rank: 1 = MOST Conservative.

You do not need an account. You do not need to log in. The pages are plain and meant to be easy to read, print, and share.

2. Getting around

The top of every page has the same tabs:

- Home — reports for recent sessions, the news box, and current articles.
- Archive — earlier years and past articles.
- Candidates — Primary, General, and Local races, by county.
- Committees and Counties — ratings for each committee and each county.
- Officials — current office holders.
- Name Index — search names, or download a PDF name list, by year, county, or committee.
- Research — longer research articles.

A Back to Home button sits near the top of each page. On inner pages it may say Back to Officials, Back to Candidates, or Back to the page you came from. You can also use your browser's Back button.

© 2026 MTR Research

Some links leave wyovote.com and open another website. They open in the same tab, so your place on WyoVote is not lost in a new window. To come back, use your browser's Back button.

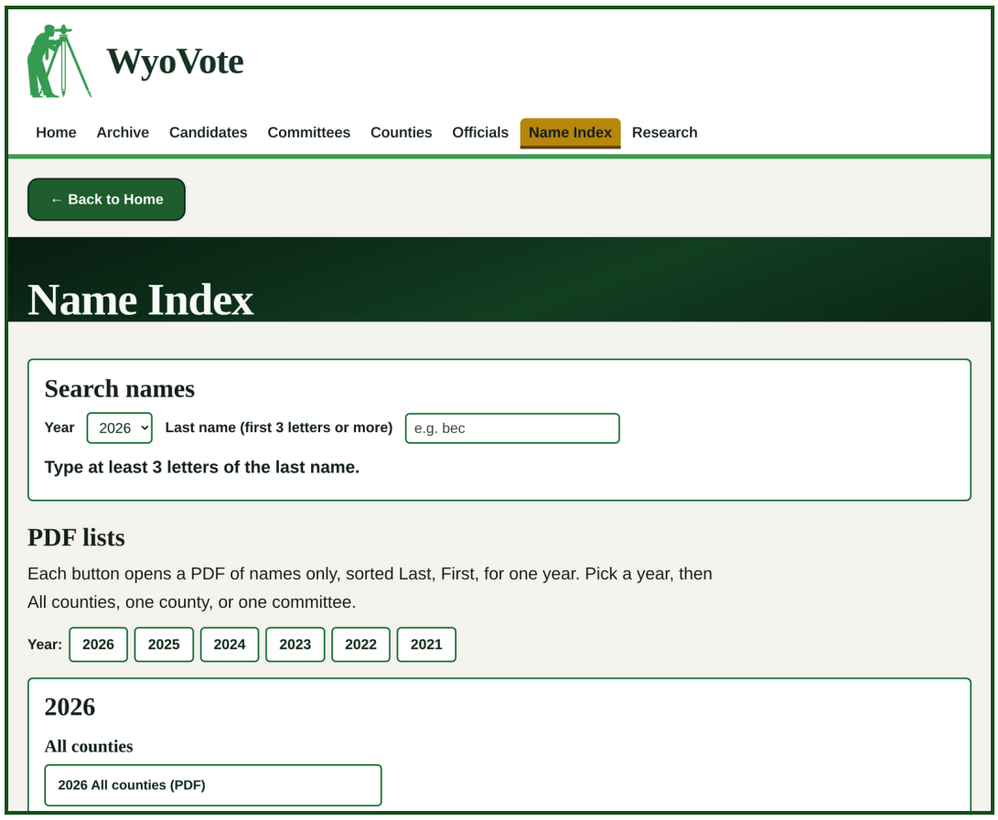

Button-style links that leave the site have a gold ring around them. A short legend above those buttons explains the gold ring. The buttons themselves do not repeat the note. Plain text links that leave the site are marked (leaves WyoVote). The About page explains this too.

The Officials page, with the tabs (including Name Index), the Back to Home button, the gold-ring legend, State buttons that leave the site, and the link to Statewide Profiles.

© 2026 MTR Research

The Name Index tab has a search box — choose a year and type at least three letters of a last name — and a set of PDF lists. Each PDF is names only, sorted Last, First, for one year. You can pick all counties, one county, or one committee. The search needs scripts turned on. The PDF lists work without them.

The Name Index: a search by year and last name, and PDF name lists by year, county, or committee.

3. Home

A large gold User's Guide: How to use WyoVote → button sits under the Home page title. It opens this guide. A smaller User's Guide link stays in the footer of every page, slightly apart from About, Privacy, and Contact.

On one side of the Home page are the rating reports. For each General Session (odd-numbered years) and Budget Session (even-numbered years) you will see a Rank report, which lists legislators by rating, and an Alpha report, which lists them by name. These Home-page tiles open the two-page summary (Letter paper, House and Senate). As of this guide, those two-page sheets are posted for 2019 through 2026. A "Full reports and older years in Archive" link opens the Archive Reports page.

On the other side is a news box with current items about Wyoming politics and elections. A Past news link opens earlier items. When there is a current featured item, a Special box also appears on this page.

Below the news box, Home shows at most four articles, newest first, and none older than 15 days. Older articles stay in the Archive. A More articles in the Archive → link sits under the list. If no current articles are on the page and only the News box is showing, a larger button — Older articles are in the Archive → — takes its place.

The news box and the article list are the parts of the Home page that change most often. The reports are updated after each legislative session and each election. A “How the Ratings Work” button on this page opens a short explanation of ranks and labels.

The Home page: the gold User’s Guide button; Rank and Alpha tiles for 2019–2026; the news box, with its Past news link, and the Special box; four articles; and “More articles in the Archive →.”

4. Candidates

The Candidates tab has three buttons:

Button	What you find
Primary	Partisan races in the statewide primary. Choose a county.
General	Federal, statewide, and legislative races in the November general election. Choose a county.
Local	County offices — and, later, towns. Choose a county. Earlier Local years are in the Archive.

© 2026 MTR Research

Click a county to see the races for that county. Races are grouped by office. A short “How to use this page” note sits at the top. Districts that cross county lines appear on every county they cover.

Each name opens that candidate’s own page. The page shows the office, the party, and the result: Won, Lost, Unopposed, or Withdrawn. When a short biography is available, it appears on the same page. If the candidate published a campaign website or campaign email, that contact is shown and marked as a campaign contact.

On a Local page, each line is in this form: Name (R) 236 Won. The number is the vote total — the general count for a general race, the primary count for a primary race. A winner’s whole line is in bold. Everyone else is ordinary type at the same size, and the line says Lost.

Results may be marked unofficial until the canvass is complete. Earlier election years are in the Archive, with the same Primary, General, and Local buttons.

A county Candidates page, with the Primary, General, and Local buttons, and Won or Lost next to each name.

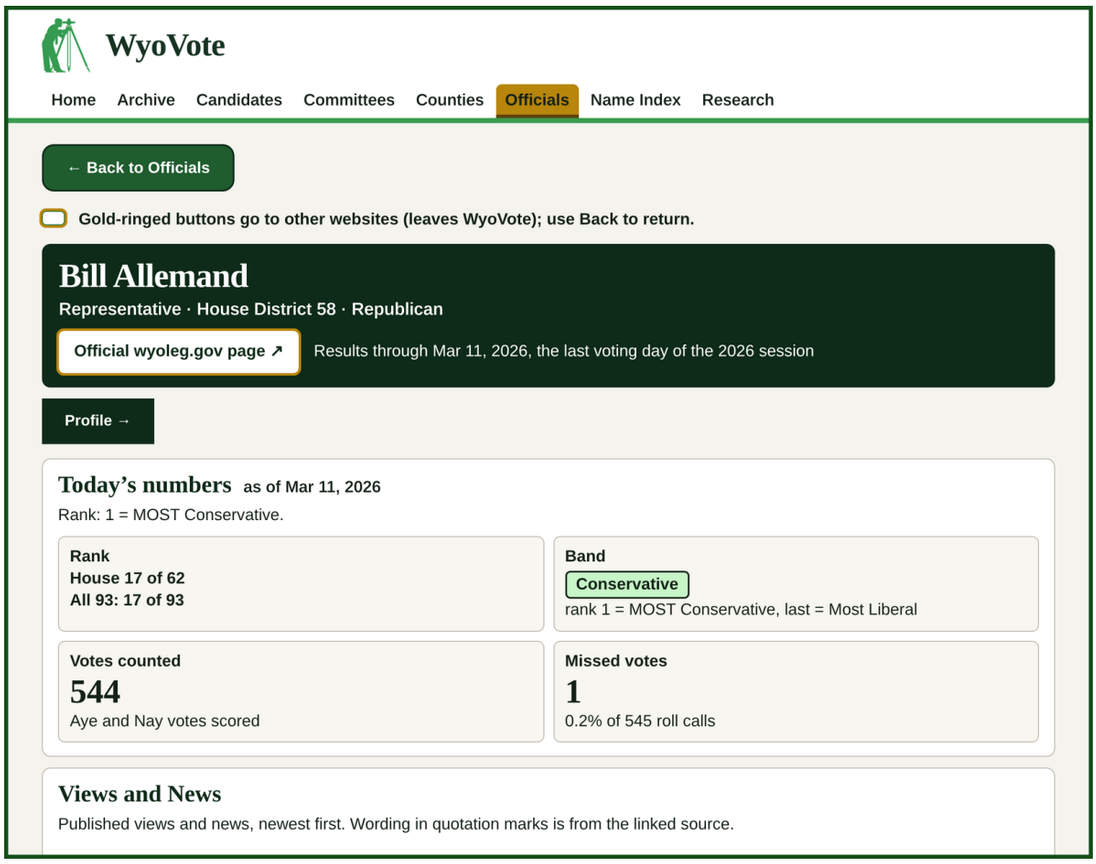

5. Officials

The Officials tab lists current office holders. Buttons at the top choose what you see:

© 2026 MTR Research

- State — statewide elected officers. These buttons open the official state website. They have a gold ring, and a legend above them explains it. A Statewide Profiles link under these five offices opens Profiles for the people who have held them, from the 2007 terms through the 2026 elects.
- House and Senate — each name opens that legislator's WyoVote page.
- General links — official state sites, including the Legislature's own "Find Your Legislator" lookup, which leaves WyoVote.

A legislator's page shows the office, district, and party, and the rank and color label for the session. The legend reads: Rank: 1 = MOST Conservative. The band is also labeled this way: rank 1 = MOST Conservative, last = Most Liberal. A Profile → button under the name opens a closer look.

A legislator's Officials page, with the gold-ring legend, the Profile button, and the rank and color label. The legend reads: Rank: 1 = MOST Conservative.

Each legislator from 2008 through 2026 has a Profile. Ranks and bands on the Profile are copied from the published WyoVote rating reports. Nothing there is estimated. The 2015 ranks shown on these pages were corrected. A Profile includes:

- A rank chart. The vertical axis is Rank (% of list), with 1 = MOST Conservative at the top and Most Liberal at the bottom, so a year with 90 ranked legislators can be compared with a year with 93. Labels give the actual rank, such as 17 of 92. The solid line is each year's rank. A dashed brick-red arrow is the trend: it starts at the first ranked year and ends, at the last ranked year, at this person's average rank (% of list) across all ranked years. Shading behind each year is that year's Conservative, Moderate, and Liberal cutoffs. A year with no dot is a year this person did not serve or was not ranked.

© 2026 MTR Research

- Band history — overall rank, chamber rank, and the color label for each year, with that year's band cutoffs.
- Issue areas, missed votes, and committee service.

When official contact information is available, it appears in a Contact block under the name — office phone, office email, office address, and the official web page, each with an "as of" date. Personal addresses, personal cell numbers, and personal social media are not collected and are not shown.

To look someone up by name, use the Name Index tab, described in "Getting around" above. Earlier session rosters are in the Archive.

A legislator Profile (here, Charles Scott), with the 2008–2026 rank chart. The vertical axis is Rank (% of list), 1 = MOST Conservative at the top. The dashed brick-red arrow is the trend.

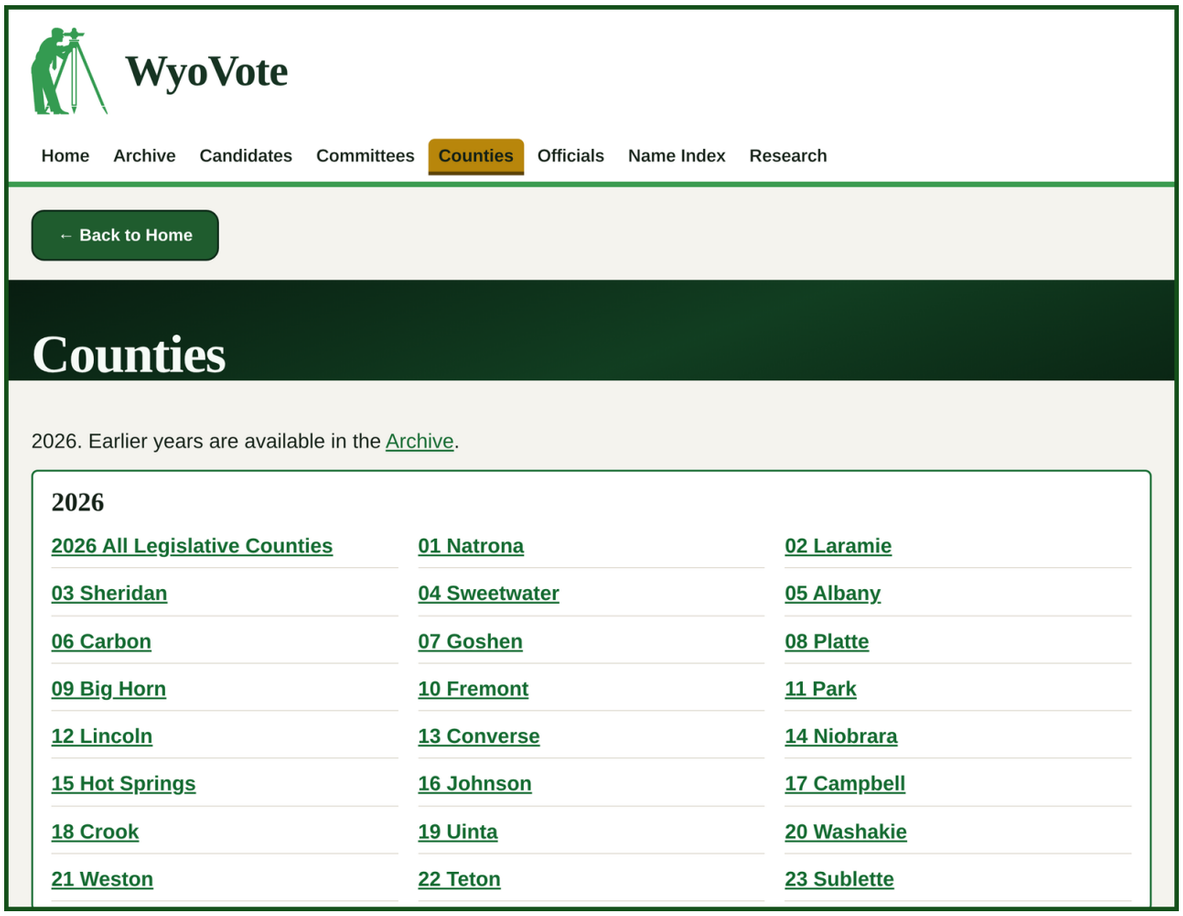

6. Committees and Counties

The Committees tab lists each legislative committee for the current session, plus a combined "All Committees" report. The Counties tab lists each county, plus a combined "All Legislative Counties" report.

© 2026 MTR Research

Each name opens the report for that committee or county. Some legislators represent more than one county, so a name may appear in more than one county report.

Earlier years are in the Archive, from a link at the top of each of these pages.

The Counties page. The Committees page uses the same layout, with a list of committees instead of counties.

7. Reports and ratings

WyoVote rates recorded roll-call votes of the Wyoming Legislature and then ranks legislators for each session. The site publishes ranks and color labels only.

Here is how to read a report:

- Ranked lists are Sorted from MOST Conservative to Most Liberal. Rank 1 is the MOST Conservative for that session, and the last rank is the Most Liberal. The legend is: Rank: 1 = MOST Conservative.
- Color labels — also called bands — group legislators who voted most alike: Conservative, Moderate, or Liberal. The size of each group can change from session to session.
- A legislator with too few counted votes in that session is shown as Not ranked.

© 2026 MTR Research

Report	What it shows
Rank	Legislators in order of rating, Sorted from MOST Conservative to Most Liberal, with rank 1 first. The two-page sheet is titled “Ratings Ranked.”
Alpha	The same people, listed by name, with the same ranks and labels.
Two-page summary	A two-page overview, House and Senate. These are set up on Letter paper (8.5 × 11 inches). As of this guide, they are posted for 2019 through 2026.
Full report	The complete report, with House and Senate sections. These are set up on Legal paper (8.5 × 14 inches). As of this guide, full reports are posted for 2021 through 2026.

To open a report, click Rank or Alpha on the Home page, or pick a report from Committees, Counties, or the Archive. The report opens as a PDF, which you can read, save, or send to your printer. See “Printing tips” below.

A short explanation of ranks and labels is also on the “How the Ratings Work” page, linked from Home and from About.

8. Archive and Research

The Archive keeps earlier years and past articles. Choose a section — Articles, Reports, Committees, Counties, Candidates, Officials, or Research — and the list is newest first. Each line opens the current file for that item. If you have an older link, it still works and takes you to the current file.

The Candidates section of the Archive has Primary, General, and Local pages for earlier election years, in the same layout as the current Candidates tab.

The Research tab holds longer research articles. You can also reach research pieces from the Archive.

© 2026 MTR Research

The Archive. Choose a section to see earlier years, past articles, and research, newest first. Candidates includes earlier Local years.

9. Printing tips

You can print any ordinary page from your browser's Print menu. On many computers that is Ctrl+P (on a Mac, Command+P), or File and then Print.

For a rating report, open the PDF first — from a Rank or Alpha button, from a committee or county name, or from the Archive Reports page. Then use the PDF reader's Print command.

Paper size. Two-page summaries are set up on Letter paper (8.5 × 11 inches) and print on ordinary printer paper. Full reports, committee reports, and county reports are set up on Legal paper (8.5 × 14 inches). If your printer uses Letter paper, choose "Fit" or "Shrink to printable area" so nothing is cut off.

© 2026 MTR Research

The 8.5 × 5.5 booklet. Many printers and PDF readers have a Booklet or Booklet printing setting. A common finished size is 8.5 × 5.5 inches — a Letter sheet folded in half. In the print dialog, choose booklet printing, print on both sides, and flip on the short edge if the dialog asks. Then fold the stack in half. The two-page summaries, which are already Letter size, work well this way.

Full reports also print as a larger Legal-size booklet (8.5 × 7 inches when folded). Use the same booklet setting and Legal paper, if your printer can take it.

Use actual size when you can, so the type stays readable. WyoVote reports use large type for this reason, and this guide does too.

The Archive Reports page. The top pair in each year is the two-page summary. The lower pair is the full report. 2019 and 2020 have the two-page sheets only. Each button opens a PDF.

10. Older computers and phones

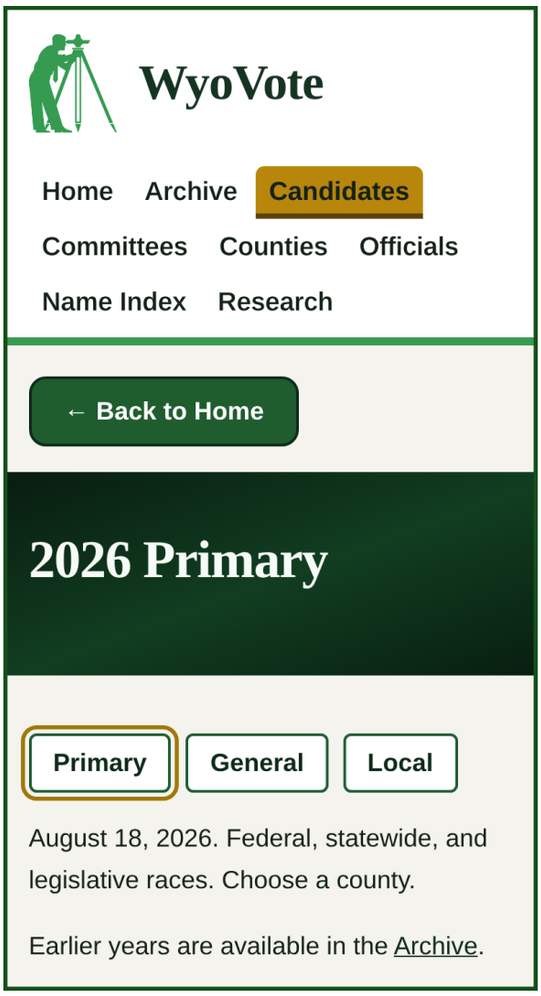

WyoVote pages are plain HTML. They are meant to work on older computers and on phones.

On a phone, pages appear in a single column. Buttons and lists stack so you can scroll and read them. The tabs wrap onto more than one row if they need the room.

If a page looks out of date, or a new button is missing, your browser may be showing an old copy. Press Ctrl+F5 (on a Mac, Command+Shift+R) to reload the fresh page.

© 2026 MTR Research

You do not need to turn on scripts for most of the site. A few features work better with scripts on: the news box, the Home article list, and the Name Index search. If the news box is empty, the same items are in the Archive. The Name Index also has PDF lists that work without scripts.

The Candidates page on a phone: a single column, wrapped tabs, and the same Primary, General, and Local buttons.

11. Where the data comes from

Election results come from the Wyoming Secretary of State and from county clerks. Legislative vote records and official member pages come from the Wyoming Legislature (wyoleg.gov).

WyoVote updates this information each election cycle, and after each legislative session. Some results are marked unofficial until the canvass is complete. Many result pages, and each contact block, carry an “as of” date.

When a county clerk or the Secretary of State has posted the official results, the county page includes a source link, marked (leaves WyoVote), so you can open the original document. Those source links are plain text, so they keep the “(leaves WyoVote)” marker.

On Local pages, county-office lines also show the vote total from those official results.

© 2026 MTR Research

WyoVote does not collect or publish personal addresses, personal cell numbers, or personal social media.

A Local county page, with vote totals, a winner's line in bold, and source links to the county clerk's official results, marked "(leaves WyoVote)."

12. Questions and contact

A few common questions:

Does WyoVote endorse candidates?

No. The site does not endorse anyone, and it does not run ads.

Why do some links have a gold ring, or say "(leaves WyoVote)"?

Button-style links that leave the site have a gold ring, with a short legend above them. Plain text links that leave the site are marked "(leaves WyoVote)." They open in the same tab. Use your browser's Back button to return.

A page looks old. What should I do?

Press Ctrl+F5 (on a Mac, Command+Shift+R) to reload the fresh page. If something still looks wrong, use the Contact page.

How often is the site updated?

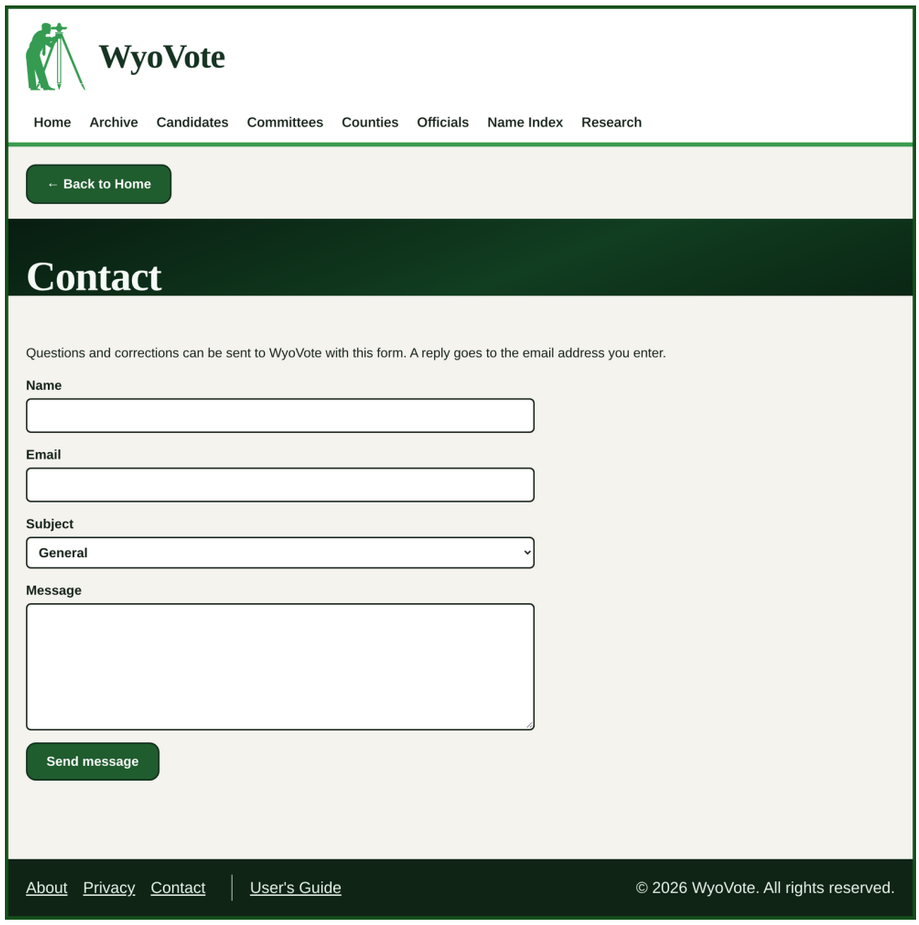

After each election and each legislative session. The news box and the Home article list change more often.

Where do I send a correction?

© 2026 MTR Research

Use the Contact page. Choose “Correction” as the subject. A reply goes to the email address you enter.

The Contact page is at the bottom of every page, next to About and Privacy. It has a short form for your name, email, subject, and message. A User’s Guide link sits in that same footer, slightly apart from those three. The large gold User’s Guide button on the Home page opens the same file.

The Contact page, with the form and, at the bottom, the About, Privacy, and Contact links, and the User’s Guide link slightly apart from those three.

C — Contact & Corrections

C-01. How do I report an error?

Use the Contact page, linked at the bottom of every page, next to About and Privacy. Fill in your name, email, and message, and choose Correction as the subject. A reply goes to the email address you enter.

C-02. Does WyoVote endorse candidates?

No. WyoVote is independent. It is not a government site, and it is not tied to any political party, candidate, or political action committee. It carries no ads, and it does not endorse candidates.

E — Elections & Candidates

E-01. How do I look up candidates?

The Candidates tab has three buttons: Primary, General, and Local. Choose a county. Races are grouped by office. Each name opens that candidate's page, with the office, the party, and the result: Won, Lost, Unopposed, or Withdrawn. Districts that cross county lines appear on every county they cover. Earlier election years are in the Archive, with the same three buttons.

E-02. What are the Local and precinct committee pages?

The Local button on the Candidates tab lists county offices — and, later, towns. Choose a county. Each line shows the name, party, vote total, and Won or Lost. A winner's whole line is in bold. Below the county offices, a Precinct Committee section lists precinct committeemen and committeewomen by precinct and by party, with the same Won or Lost results. Earlier Local years are in the Archive.

P — Finding People

P-01. How do I find my legislator by county?

Open the Counties tab and click your county. That opens the rating report for the legislators who represent that county. Some legislators represent more than one county, so a name may appear in more than one county report. Earlier years are in the Archive, from a link at the top of the Counties page. You can also use the Officials tab: choose House or Senate. To look someone up by name, use the Name Index tab. The Officials page also has a gold-ringed "Find Your Legislator" button under General links, which leaves WyoVote and opens the Legislature's own lookup.

© 2026 MTR Research

P-02. What is on the Officials tab?

The Officials tab lists current office holders. State buttons open the official state websites — they have a gold ring, and a legend above them explains it. A Statewide Profiles link under those five offices opens Profiles for the people who have held them, from the 2007 terms through the 2026 elects. House and Senate names open each legislator's WyoVote page, with the office, district, party, and the rank and color label for the session. The legend reads: Rank: 1 = MOST Conservative. The band is also labeled this way: rank 1 = MOST Conservative, last = Most Liberal. A Profile → button opens a closer look: a rank chart, band history, issue areas, committee service, and missed votes. Each legislator from 2008 through 2026 has a Profile. The 2015 ranks shown there were corrected. To look someone up by name, use the Name Index tab.

P-03. What is the Name Index?

The Name Index is a tab at the top of every page. It has a search box — choose a year and type at least three letters of a last name — and a set of PDF lists. Each PDF is names only, sorted Last, First, for one year. You can pick all counties, one county, or one committee. The search needs scripts turned on. The PDF lists work without them.

R — Ratings & Ranks

R-01. What do WyoVote ratings and ranks mean?

WyoVote rates recorded roll-call votes of the Wyoming Legislature and then ranks legislators for each session. The site publishes ranks and color labels only — Conservative, Moderate, or Liberal. It never publishes the underlying coefficients. A short explanation of ranks and labels is on the "How the Ratings Work" page, linked from Home and from About.

R-02. What does "Sorted from MOST Conservative to Most Liberal" mean?

Ranked lists use that heading, and it names both ends on purpose. Rank 1 is the MOST Conservative in that session, and the last rank is the Most Liberal. Naming both ends makes the direction of the list clear, so a reader is not left guessing which end is which.

R-03. Why does a new member not have a rating yet?

Ratings come from recorded votes in a session. A newly seated member does not have a rating for that session until the member has enough counted Aye and Nay votes. If the member has earlier WyoVote ranks, those still appear on the Profile, labeled with their year.

R-04. What does "Not ranked" mean?

A legislator with too few counted votes in that session is shown as Not ranked. That is not a color label. It means there were not enough counted Aye and Nay votes in that session to assign a rank.

D — Reports & Downloads

D-01. Which years are covered, and where are the Reports and Ranked PDFs?

WyoVote reports cover each General Session (odd-numbered years) and Budget Session (even-numbered years). The Home page shows Rank and Alpha tiles that open two-page summaries (Letter paper, 8.5 × 11 inches). Archive → Reports has those same two-page sheets and, for years that have them, the full reports (Legal paper, 8.5 × 14 inches). The top pair in each year is the two-page sheet. The lower pair is the full report. Committee and county reports are on the Committees and Counties tabs, with earlier years in the Archive. Years that are not posted are marked Not available. As of this guide, two-page Rank and Alpha sheets are posted for 2019 through 2026, and full reports are posted for 2021 through 2026.

D-02. What is the difference between a Ranked report and an Alpha report?

Rank lists legislators in order of rating, Sorted from MOST Conservative to Most Liberal, with rank 1 first and the last rank the Most Liberal. The two-page Rank sheet is titled “Ratings Ranked.” Alpha lists the same people by name, with the same ranks and labels. Each comes as a two-page summary (Letter paper) and, for years that have one, a full report (Legal paper), with House and Senate sections.

D-03. How do I print a report or a booklet?

Open the PDF first — from a Rank or Alpha button, from a committee or county name, or from the Archive Reports page — then use the PDF reader’s Print command. Two-page summaries are Letter size. Full reports, committee reports, and county reports are Legal size. If your printer uses Letter paper, choose “Fit” or “Shrink to printable area” so nothing is cut off. For an 8.5 × 5.5 inch booklet, choose booklet printing, print on both sides, and flip on the short edge if the dialog asks, then fold a Letter sheet in half. Full reports can also be printed as a larger Legal-size booklet (8.5 × 7 inches when folded), if your printer can take Legal paper.

S — Using the Site

S-01. What are the gold-ringed buttons?

Button-style links that leave wyovote.com have a gold ring around them. A short legend above those buttons explains the gold ring. The buttons themselves do not repeat the note. Those links open in the same tab, so use your browser’s Back button to return. Plain text links that leave the site are marked (leaves WyoVote). The State buttons on the Officials tab are one example.

S-02. How often is the data updated?

WyoVote updates election results and official lists each election cycle, and updates ratings after each legislative session. The news box and the article list on the Home page change more often. Home shows at most four articles below the news, and none older than 15 days; older articles are in the Archive. Some results are marked unofficial until the canvass is complete. Many result pages, and each contact block, carry an “as of” date.

S-03. How do I open the User’s Guide?

A large gold User’s Guide: How to use WyoVote → button sits under the Home page title. A smaller User’s Guide link is in the footer of every page, slightly apart from About, Privacy, and Contact. Both open the same guide.
